The Success of CCPN

As I recently reviewed the CCPN Mission Statement (see top of page 2), I was reminded of why CCPN was first created and what the organization has accomplished in less than two years.

North Carolina’s independent physicians are an essential part of the solution as healthcare reform moves forward.

With NC Medicaid managed care on the horizon and commercial payers moving quickly towards value-based reimbursement models, CCPN exists to advocate for independent physicians and provide them with the tools they need to thrive.

First and foremost CCPN is investing in systems to help physicians improve the quality of care delivered in their practices and successfully report the data which reflects the care they have delivered and the impact on their patient population.

We have executed contracts with payers who are competing for the Medicaid contract as well as other commercial plans.

We are working continually to execute agreements which can lower the cost of doing business for our participating practices. In short, we are working for you. You can learn more specifics about all of these items at the regional Conversations and Updates meetings currently taking place across the state or on our website www.communitycarephysiciansnetwork.com.

What I want you to remember is that at CCPN, you and your patients are our top priority.

If you have any questions or concerns you would like to share with me please contact me at adobson@communitycarenc.org.

Physician Highlight

Diego Garza, MD, MPH, has a vision where patients who need high-quality behavioral health services are able to access these services no matter where they live in North Carolina.

Dr. Garza is working to make this vision a reality through his work as Director of Telehealth at Carolina Partners in Mental HealthCare.

Dr. Garza has first-hand experience with telemedicine and the impact it can have on patients' access to care.

After completing his medical training he helped develop and implement the biggest federally funded telemedicine program in Mexico. Upon completing his Master in Public Health Degree at UNC, where he also worked as Project Director for a Teleophthalmology initiative, he began his work at Carolina Partners hoping to utilize telemedicine to reach underserved populations across North Carolina.

Through the Telepsychiatry/Teletherapy program which Dr. Garza currently oversees, 700 - 800 patients per month receive telemedicine visits from one of 30 participating clinicians.

Dr. Garza believes that as the healthcare system becomes more focused on health outcomes, it won't matter where services are delivered as long as the patients are receiving the quality care they need.

He looks forward to working with CCPN's independent clinicians to collaborate with colleagues and learn from each other about innovative ways to deliver care which will ultimately result in better patient outcomes.

Diego Garza, M.D.

Understanding North Carolina Medicaid’s new Advanced Medical Home program and choosing your practice’s Advanced Medical Home participation tier is critically important.

As a member of Community Care Physician Network (CCPN), you are entitled to receive assistance in evaluating which Advanced Medical Home tier option is right for you. Some important points to remember as you evaluate your options:

Current CCPN/CCNC practices will be grandfathered in as a Tier 2 Advanced Medical Home if they take no action to become a Tier 3 Advanced Medical Home.

By participating in CCPN, you will receive the needed analytical and population management infrastructure to attain Tier 3 Advanced Medical Home status.

CCPN has value-based provider contracts in place with managed care entities competing for the Medicaid contract in which care management will be delivered through the CCPN/CCNC infrastructure already in place.

Careful consideration must be given by each practice to determine what additional advantages, if any, there are to obtaining Tier 3 Advanced Medical Home status.

For those practices wishing to pursue Tier 3 Advanced Medical Home designation, CCPN staff in collaboration with CCNC will help develop a "blueprint" for implementation and help answer questions you may have about completing the attestation process.

While not all aspects of the Tier 3 Advanced Medical Home program have been defined (particularly around payments and incentives practices can receive) the attestation process in NC TRACKS will begin on October 1, 2018 and end on January 31, 2019.

Practices may have to make participation decisions before all the relevant information is available. Primary care practices that want to participate as a Tier 3 Advanced Medical Home during the first year of the new Medicaid managed care program must complete the attestation process by January 31, 2019.

We are here to help you navigate in the new Medicaid world. If you would like to receive assistance, please email Tiffany Ferguson-Cline at: tferguson-cline@communitycarenc.org and include your name and practice name and address. We will ensure a Provider Relations staff member contacts you.

Thank you and we look forward to assisting you and your practice.
Catawba Pediatric Associates, P.A. serves children from birth through college age located in Catawba County and surrounding areas. Their mission is to “be responsive to our community’s health care needs by delivering high quality health related services. All services provided by Catawba Pediatric Associates, P.A. will be delivered by quality and committed staff, and will be accessible to our patients and families”.

The practice has demonstrated a strong commitment to their mission by becoming a member of Community Care Physician Network (CCPN), and graduating from CCNC’s Practice Transformation Network (PTN) in May.

Non-emergent ED utilization was identified as an improvement opportunity in March 2018, and the practice set a goal to reduce utilization by 20% by December 31, 2018. The target population was identified using multiple data sources including CCNC’s Provider Portal, hospital discharge reports, and direct access to the local hospital’s EMR.

Interventions such as identifying high priority populations (patients seen during office hours; high utilizers), utilizing a care team approach to provide direct patient follow-up after visits, and disseminating patient education materials were implemented as catalysts for improvement.

Comparing Medicaid claims data for dates March 1 – August 31, 2017 to March 1 – August 31, 2018 shows a reduction of 18.36% in the number of non-emergent ED visits. Additionally, internal data collection indicates there has been a 3% reduction in the number of patients utilizing the ED during office hours.

As North Carolina transitions to Medicaid Managed Care, improving clinical outcomes and reducing cost by decreasing unnecessary utilization will be especially important in value based payment models.

As demonstrated by Catawba Pediatrics’ non-emergent ED project, quality improvement methodologies such as utilizing data to identify opportunities, establishing goals, implementing impactful strategies, and tracking progress are essential to successful quality improvement efforts.

The Importance of Depression and Opportunities for Improving Depression-Related Outcomes

Major depressive disorder (MDD) is a commonly occurring, seriously impairing, and often recurrent mental disorder, affecting approximately 16.2 million American adults, or 6.7% of U.S. population aged 18 and older in any given year.\textsuperscript{1,2} Currently the leading cause of disability among Americans aged 15-44, if kept on its current trajectory, MDD is positioned to become the second leading cause of disability worldwide by the year 2020 (second only to heart disease).\textsuperscript{1,3–7}

Almost no bodily organ is immune to the effects of depression and its associated maladaptive health risk behaviors, and as such depression is a risk factor for (as well as consequence of) a multitude of diseases, most impactful to the system being those of a preventable chronic or multi-chronic nature and suicide, the tenth leading cause of death nationwide.\textsuperscript{1,6,8–14} As of 2014, direct and indirect costs of depression totaled $210.5 billion USD annually, only 38% of which was due to MDD itself as opposed to comorbid conditions.\textsuperscript{1,7,10,15–19}

Despite this evidence, depression, like other mental disorders, is often not deemed to be on par with other chronic physical health conditions in terms of its effect on overall health.\textsuperscript{6} In a new statewide QI project led by CCNC, a cross-section of CCPN and other primary care practices, pharmacies, and care managers are working in a multidisciplinary fashion to increase patient adherence to antidepressant medication per clinical guidelines, monitoring impact using nationally-aligned (HEDIS)/NQF technical specifications.

This tactic has strong potential for health (including chronic disease) and health practice cross-benefits and will continue to grow in importance as reimbursement methodologies are tied to proving value to the consumer.
